

Rev. Sherrie Taylor-Jones

Special Message to Unity of Naples

The prospect of becoming a spiritual leader at Unity of Naples excites me because you have made a conscious decision to be “a mission-driven spiritual community”. Making this decision means you are awakening to a new level of self-awareness and consciousness. You realize that you have the power to make this world into a world that works for all beings. Our individual power magnifies when we are in collaboration energetically for a common mission guided by Christ consciousness.

I’m looking for kindred spirits who know that we are truly all one, a community engaged in “living the truth you know.” My goal is to partner with a community that is desirous of sustaining the highest good for each other and for our community.

About Rev. Sherrie Taylor-Jones

Rev. Sherrie Taylor-Jones has an extensive background, over fifteen years in consulting and training. She has designed and developed customized courses in: Strategic Planning, Communications Skills, Conflict Resolution, Leadership Skills, Organizational Development, and Computer Software. She is also a certified pastoral counselor from St. John’s University in Nottingham, U.K. In her previous careers, Sherrie has been an entrepreneur owning a restaurant with her husband, as well as, the Shelter Director at The American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals in NYC for 5 years.

Her experience as a minister was immensely benefitted by her previous work experience. In her two years as the senior minister of Unity of Lawrence our community has accomplished much. We reduced our debt load by $70,000; sold a building that was draining our resources; improved and updated our facility to create a more inviting atmosphere. During her tenure as the senior minister she translated her corporate management skills within the framework of healthy church management and governance.

Rev. Sherrie believes Unity’s Principles are a necessity to create a world where every sentient being thrives. As metaphysical practitioners we are called to be the catalysts of great change, as we embrace each person as worthy and welcomed. With this ethos in mind, Rev. Sherrie has created an inclusivity training program that was presented at the Unity South Central Region Ministerial Conference in October of 2017 and was very well received. She is also passionate about helping ministers to end their tenure with their communities in a loving and grace-filled way. She has submitted a leaving process framework to Unity World Wide Ministries. In the continuation of her passion to assist other ministries she will also be attending The Interim Ministry Network’s training program this summer.

Sunday Service: "Who Are Those People?"

Sometimes we make judgments of other people that aren't like us. Perhaps they behave differently, think differently, believe differently, or perceive the world differently. In those situations it's sooo easy to think who are those people or even, what's wrong with those people. Rev Sheree gives us a fresh take on answering the age old question: "Who are those people?" It's a pertinent question for us today.

Workshop: "The Art of Allowing"

This workshop continues the dialogue of overcoming "othering". We will examine why the concept of divisiveness is so alluring and creates an artificial reality. Rev Sheree will provide you with an opportunity to gain new insights to assist you in breaking through the false self. Imagine walking in the world unafraid of false truths. Join us as we discuss the power of "othering" and shifting consciousness.
